HEBREW SCHOOL HOLOCAUST PROJECT TEACHES SIXTH GRADERS

The sixth grade students prepared a "Wax Museum." Every sixth grader attended school from 9:45 to 11:45 on Sunday, April 15 dressed in a costume and prepared with a self-written monologue to describe the experiences of someone who lived through the Holocaust. It was a wonderful project that conveyed the information and emotion of Holocaust Remembrance Day. The other grades traveled from one Sixth Grader to another and listened to the accounts. Yasher Koach to all of the sixth graders for their hard work and to their parents for their support.

The following was written by Nicole Travers, sixth grader as part of our "Yom Hashoah Wax Museum" project:

My name is Herschel Tribitz. I was born on October 4, 1929 in a town called Satmar which is in the Transylvanian region of Hungary. I was the sixth child out of nine. I have three brothers and five sisters. We were very religious. I went to Hebrew school every day (in addition to regular school). There were about eighteen thousand Jews in my town and the surrounding villages.

When World War II began, the Germans and Hungarians were allies and there were many acts of violence against the Jews. However, when the Hungarians refused to send their Jews to concentration camps it made the Germans angry. Germany invaded Hungary in March of 1944. By April, they began to round up Jews and send them to concentration camps. The first group of Jews to be sent away was the Jews from Transylvania. In May, the Hungarian police told my family that we had to report to the train station where we would be sent away to work on a farm until the war was over. At the time, we didn't know the truth. We believed the lies. We had heard stories about Jews being killed in concentration camps, but thought they were wild rumors. We also thought the war would be over soon because my father used to listen to the radio every night and knew the Russian army was pushing back the Germans.

We went on the train with all the other Jewish families. Each family was allowed to take only one suitcase. We had to leave everything else behind. The train had no seats. Everybody had to stand. It was crowded. There was no room to move around. There was only one bucket for a toilet, but it got filled up fast and would spill over. We were on this train for three days straight and had nothing to eat or drink. Many people got sick. Some even died.

We arrived at a camp called Auschwitz, which is in Poland. There were a lot of German soldiers with machine guns and barking dogs. We saw other people with their heads shaven and wearing what looked like striped pajamas. We were all very frightened. Many children and women were crying. The guards would yell at us to be quiet. This is where by family and I was separated. I was fourteen years old and my brother Beryl was fifteen. However, when we were asked if we were over sixteen, we said "yes" and the guards told us to go stand with a different group. That was the last time I saw my parents and my other brothers and sisters. My brother and I stayed in a barn for about nine days and then were sent to another camp in Austria call Mutthausen. We had to work in the coal mines from morning to night. Our one meal of the day was one slice of moldy bread and a bowl of watery soup. At night we were crowded together in a bunk, with about three people in one bed. We got weak and sick very fast, but if we didn't work we'd be beaten or shot. One day my brother died from hunger and disease.

I was at Mutthasuen for almost one year. In the early spring of 1945, we started hearing bombs getting closer and closer. We knew the Germans were being defeated. One day the camp was deserted and then the American army came to free us. I weighed about 70 pounds at the time and was really weak. I am not sure how I survived. I guess I was just lucky and was determined to go on. If the Americans had come a few days later I might not have survived. We stayed in the camp until we got healthy again and then everybody went to their homes to see who else from their families were still alive. I also went back to Satmar and found out from other people that no one else from my family survived. I stayed in the town for a few months hoping someone would return, but no one did. I left Satmar in early 1946 and never went back. I eventually made my way to Israel to help create a Jewish country so that the Jews would have a place of their own and a place to run if they were ever in danger again.

Finding yourself at loose ends now that the kids are out of the house? Looking to join a congenial social group to occupy some of that new free time? Craving activities with grownups, activities that are fun, cultural (sometimes) and which always include food? Then Empty Nesters is for you.

We are open to singles and couples. We meet once a month. Each member unit takes a turn at planning the activities. We have visited museums, restaurants, had potlucks and many other activities. We always enjoy being together, talking and sharing.

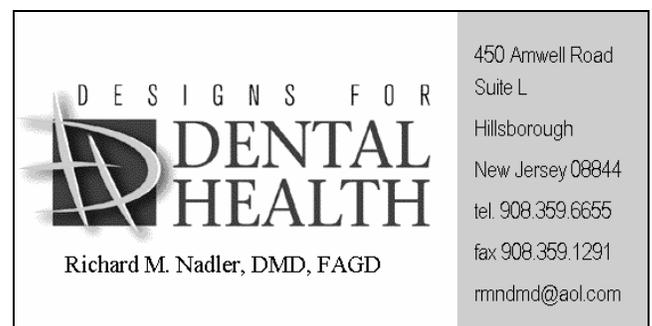

If you think Empty Nesters is for you, or you have questions about us, please contact Richard and Sheryl Rosenberg at 908-253-7049 or swellcourt@verizon.net (with Empty Nesters in the subject line).

Sisterhood

Attention Women of CKS:

Leslie Kowalski and I are going to try to re-start our sisterhood. Our goal is to get to know more members of CKS and have some fun together. Our first event will be a dessert night at Old Man Rafferty's in Hillsborough, probably in mid-late April. We welcome everyone to the event and would love suggestions on what we should do as a group. If you are interested in joining us (no long term commitment required) please send your email contact info to Lisa's assistant at annie@luminationsgroup.com with a note that says "put me on the CKS Sisterhood distribution list". Thanks and hope to see you soon!

Reminders of Ultimate Truths

A flood. A shooting.

Within hours of each other, reminders of our ultimate powerlessness against natural forces, the fragility of life and the necessity of community.

Anyone who witnessed the flooding here in Central NJ was reminded that despite our technology and engineering we exist at the whims of nature. The sight of the Raritan River flowing through Bound Brook, or of the bridge over Pike Creek all but submerged in the flooding waters was a profound witness to forces greater than our own. We delude ourselves if we think that our homes are permanently and eternally secure.

The tragic deaths on the Virginia Tech campus reminds us that:

•Any moment may be our last. We get up in the morning, go about our daily routine and so rarely consider the gift that is each day and that our last interaction with our loved ones may be our last. Have we asked forgiveness for what we regret? Have we taken care of things as well as possible?

We are taught that we should "repent one day before we die." Rabbi Eliezer taught this truth, to which one of his disciples asked, "but do humans know the date of their death?!" Rabbi Eliezer replied, "Therefore you should repent today lest you die! (Babylonian Talmud, Shabbat 153a)

•There are people hurting among us - we cannot marginalize or ignore them. I saw NBC airing the video sent to them by the shooter. It was painful to watch; he was so clearly psychotic. He did not share a reality with those around him. He was not in control of his actions. Yet even with his documented history of mental illness, he was able to purchase handguns and ammunition. As the former Secretary of the Labor, Prof. Robert Reich noted in a commentary, the shooter would have needed a prescription from a physician to get the drugs that might have helped him; he did not need to be evaluated by anyone to buy the pistols he used. Without getting into the issues of individual liberty vs. public safety, it seems to me that we ought to make the effort to know our neighbors better and to help where and when we can. It may save our lives.

•Sometimes ordinary people do heroic things. Who would have thought that a man who survived the Sho'ah and a lifetime of repression under a totalitarian regime would die saving his students by his act of self-sacrifice? The story of Liviu Librescu, professor of engineering whose presence of mind and personal courage in blocking the door of his classroom with his body allowed almost all of his students to escape alive. His sacrifice made it possible for other, younger people to live.

•We are all connected. Because of the sizeable international student population and of the age of immigration in which we live, the circles of pain suffering and grief radiating from the V.T. campus cove large swaths of our planet. For the best poetic expression of this image of connection see Yehuda Amichai's poem, "The Diameter of the Bomb": <http://lennon.csufresno.edu/~kds31/ami1.html>

Note that in the last line where it says "makes a circle without end and without God" the Hebrew Amichai used for without end (ein-sof) is one of the many Hebrew names of God (!). The sentence could be translated as: "makes the circle the Endless and Godless."

•Human kindness is all we really have: One of the most touching tales of survival during the shooting was from a very lucky young man who came through it uninjured while fellow students all around him died or were severely wounded. He recalled being on the floor near to a female student he didn't know. During the shooting, a bullet grazed her back. Yet unlike others who covered with eyes closed facing their deaths, they looked into each other's eyes. Not at the carnage around them, and not even to the fear and terror on their faces, but into another human face. The essential human need for each other, for community, in a moment of irrational and grotesque horror.

To me acting humanely, humbly, courageously and compassionately is being Godly. May we work on ourselves so that we can face whatever may come our way with Godliness.

Rabbi Michael Tayvah

Cooking With Josh

In April, we celebrated Yom Ha'atzmaut (Israeli Independence Day). Each grade had the opportunity to cook a different Middle Eastern dish to experience the foods commonly eaten in Israel. At the end of each session, we all got together to sample falafel and hummus made from chickpeas, Israeli chopped salad full of cucumbers and tomatoes, baba ghanoush made from grilled eggplant, and blue and white (Israeli flag) cupcakes. All these recipes can be found on a great website that shows films of how to make these delicious dishes. Go to www.videojug.com/. Then go to "food" and then choose "middle eastern." Here is my favorite recipe for hummus. Serve it with pita bread or carrot sticks.

Hummus

- 1 15 ounce can chickpeas (garbanzo beans)
- 2 gloves garlic
- 1 teaspoon cumin
- 1/3 cup water
- Juice of one lemon
- 6 tablespoons sesame tahini
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper to taste

Drain chickpeas. Put all ingredients in a food processor and process until smooth. If too thick, add a little more water.

Hope you all have fun cooking!

HEBREW HIGH SCHOOL

Registration: Registration information for the 07-08 school year has been emailed to congregational families with post b'nai mitzvah teens. Hebrew High School is modeled after adult-education classes and features a wide array of topics for discussion. The class meets on Wednesday for 8th, 9th, and 10th grade students and on Thursdays for 11th and 12th grade students. The two hour sessions from 5:00-7:00 are split into two sections, each with a separate focus and are taught by the rabbi, CKS congregant, paid teacher, or guest speaker. Class begins with an informal dinner (pizza) and time to socialize.

If you haven't received an email about Hebrew High school for 07-08, please contact me.

Attention: 7th grade students and their parents: During the last two sessions of Hebrew school, 7th graders will be invited to sample Hebrew High school. On May 9th, the 7th graders are welcome to participate in a class of Hebrew High. On May 16th, the 7th graders are invited to a year-end party with the Hebrew High school students. There will be an information session for parents of 7th grade students on May 9th. Please mark your calendars for these events. More information will be sent in the weekly congregational emails.

Here's what's been happening in Hebrew High School during the month of April.

From congregant Jeremy Lerner:

This is Jeremy Lerner, a now proud "Hebrew High" volunteer, with an activity report.

So far I have participated in three sessions. In two of these (with different classes) I shared my experiences from growing up in Wales after WW2, to my subsequent conversion to Judaism. We discussed "magic moments", or turning points, in life. "Instant decisions" we make without hesitation; without regret. Decisions that sometimes defy a simple answer to the question "why did you do that?"

During the third session we discussed a project in the School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania that uses an instrument I devised to monitor the effectiveness of cancer therapy. The students were given "normal tissue", they added "pollutants" to make it "cancerous" and then "cured it" by adding "medication". We discussed that if all goes well, we will use light and color to track the progress of a tumor from "bad", "getting better", all the way to "look its gone!" The goal is to speed the journey to wellness for individuals undergoing cancer therapy. Consequently, discussions were centered on the impact of cancer on individuals as well as those of family and friends.

Lastly, I would like to make a general comment about volunteering for Hebrew High. It was an incredibly rewarding experience! Our Hebrew High students are so smart, caring, and so manifestly perceptive that I ended up learning more about myself. This came as a surprise!

To any Temple members/parents thinking about volunteering for Hebrew High – just do it – you will not regret it. If you have never considered volunteering, please do so now. You can make a difference, and have a great time doing it! If I am lucky, I will be invited back!

From congregant teacher Susan Waskow:

Hebrew High has missed a few classes as we were closed during Passover. We did enjoy the warm weather by taking a break from studies and played Frisbee on a recent beautiful spring day. We've also been playing the Jewish version of the board game Apples to Apples. As a result, the students have been getting a quick overview of Yiddish phrases and Jewish popular culture not usually discussed in Hebrew school. We welcomed Erica Gavzy to our midst as she has recently celebrated her bat mitzvah. We hope other recent bar and bat mitzvahs will join us as the academic year draws to a close.

Eli Unger has continued to teach Thursday's class conversational Hebrew. This month they learned to count to 4,000! Eli also discussed Israeli current events with the class.

Thanks to all our teachers in the Hebrew High school program - Rabbi Michael Tayvah, Susan Waskow, Eli Unger, and new this month, Jeremy Lerner. By the way, Jeremy, you are invited back! Also appreciated are the parents and teens who purchased pizza for the month. Thank you - Lisa Kent, Tom Berger, Natalie London, Sue Krisloff, Carrie Fischman, and Jake Fridkis.

Shalom,

Karen Fridkis, Hebrew High School chair kfridkis@comcast.net

CONGREGATIONAL KEHILAT SHALOM YOUTH GROUP

The planned youth group activity for April is an informal get together at shul on Sunday evening, April 29th. Plans were underway at the time of this column for the youth group to meet at CKS for dinner and socializing. While the adults are having a congregation wide meeting, the teens can be together in the social hall playing board games and cards as well as baby-sitting (if needed).

Looking ahead to May and June, the youth committee is hoping to organize two final events for the year. Possible activities are a canoe/kayak trip and shul-in. Details for both will be forwarded in the weekly congregational email updates.

The youth committee is seeking new members. Volunteers are needed to plan, organize, and chaperone next year's youth events. If you have a teen who is interested in participating in youth group events, or if you like working with teens, or even if you have a good idea or two for a youth event, please consider joining the youth committee. The committee does most of the work via email, with an infrequent meeting or two during the year.

RECONSTRUCTIONIS REGIONAL YOUTH GROUP

In came the nor'easter and out went the scavenger hunt on April 15. No fear, the event was rescheduled for the following week and hopefully the weather cooperated this time. Josh Goldsmith writes: We'll celebrate the beautiful month of April with a scavenger hunt across Princeton's campus and up and down Nassau Street. Who knows what you might have to find—it could be a Bent Spoon cupcake, a napkin from the WaWa, or John Nash! Which team will emerge victorious? We'll find out in our Princeton Scavenger Hunt!

The other April regional event was The Noar Hadash North American Teen Kallah on April 27-29. Teens joined from all across North America for an amazing weekend. Reconstructionist teens met to get to know other Jewish teens, have fun, take part in experiential Jewish learning, sing and dance, hang out, and connect with peers from across our exciting youth movement.

SAVE THE DATES:

Sunday, May 6 - picnic, canoeing, and trash pick-up service project.

Sunday, May 20 - Bonfire and cookout.

Time and place for both events to be announced.

Shalom,

Karen Fridkis, Youth group chair kfridkis@comcast.net
